Privacy Policy

Dear Recipient,

On May 25, 2018, the EU General Data Protection Regulation, or “EU GDPR”, comes into force. The objective of the EU GDPR is to set the level of data protection to a uniformly high standard throughout the EU. We have already set the highest standards for our data protection level and are therefore well prepared for the new EU GDPR.

We hope you’ve been enjoying some of the e-mail communications that we’ve been sending you containing our news, updates and conferences. This message is to inform you that your name and e-mail-address currently resides in ERCE’s internal systems for our internal purposes. ERCE PAS does not rent or sell our customer e-mail list. We may at time use your contact information to promote conferences of other professional organizations related to ecohydrology.

If you would like to continue to receive newsletters, updates and other information about ERCE’s content, events and exhibitions, no action is required.

If you would like to have your name and e-mail-address deleted from ERCE’s systems, please send a request to erce@erce.unesco.lodz.pl.

Yours sincerely,

Director of the European Regional Centre for Ecohydrology of the Polish Academy of Sciences
